

Does Your Business Depend on Government Contracts?

Are you Confused By New Jersey's Pay-to-Play Laws?

Will Your Political Contributions Jeopardize Future Business?

To date, 150 New Jersey towns have enacted pay-to-play ordinances that, in conjunction with State and county laws, create compliance challenges for companies that depend on government contracts. Businesses holding various government contracts in New Jersey are prohibited from making certain political contributions. Even worse, some political contributions can render a business ineligible to receive future government contracts.

While some pay-to-play laws govern the ability to make political contributions, others impose limits on the amounts of political contribution. These regulations impact individuals, groups, committees, associations, unions and corporations.

To ensure compliance with complex New Jersey regulations, your business should consult one source for State, county and municipal pay-to-play laws. A subscription to the Porzio Pay-to-Play Database delivers comprehensive, easily accessible information:

- Web-based access to pay-to-play criteria, thresholds and limits on political contributions
- Real-time updates on pay-to-play and lobbying news and pending legislation
- Detailed analysis of laws, regulations and court decisions
- Personal support from Porzio's attorneys, lobbyists and analysts
- Easy-to-follow maps and charts
- Dictionary of pertinent definitions

Contact us today:

Porzio Pay-to-Play Database
www.porzio-paytoplay.com
info@porziopaytoplay.com
973.889.5188

Ideal Subscribers

- ✓ Corporations
- ✓ Contractors
- ✓ Governmental Entities
- ✓ In-House Counsel
- ✓ Political Candidates
- ✓ Political Parties
- ✓ Trade Associations

Information Covered

- ✓ Pending Legislation
- ✓ Reporting Requirements
- ✓ Contribution Limits
- ✓ Avoiding Penalties
- ✓ Curing a Violation
- ✓ Exceptions